

Seeing Our Way Through These Times

Welcome to something new. I would like to begin sharing with you several topical articles in the areas of personal finance and financial planning on regular basis, similar to my past 'Market Update' correspondence. Read whatever may be of interest to you and ignore anything that isn't.

We seem to have hit a tipping point in the pandemic health crisis. With continued mitigation efforts, it's possible to see a light at the end of the tunnel. More and more, talk has turned to what life will be like when it's all over.

It's becoming more important to start to find that balance between staying present and looking ahead to your future. It's okay to look for that light at the end of the tunnel, but more importantly, it's okay to plan for it.

That means it's a good time to examine your financial strategy and to refocus on both short and long-term goals. Make sure you are positioned to weather the crisis as well as be at an advantageous position in an ever-changing world when it's all over.

I welcome the opportunity to review your investment objectives how we ensure the long-term success of your strategy. Please feel free to reach out.
